

Hello everyone,

I hope that you all have been having a lovely time at home, next week some of you will be coming back to school and some of you are staying at home. It is going to be different but don't worry we will get to see each other all together one day!

I am getting ready for the ducks returning to school and they will be at school next week so I will send you all some photographs and videos.

I am planning on having a movie night one night this week and eating some popcorn, have any of you done this?

You have all been getting up to some lovely things and sharing these with me, I have also loved seeing the hard work that you have been doing. You are all working so hard and making me so very proud every day!

This week I thought we should all share a laugh, so here is a joke for you all:

What do you call a dinosaur that is sleeping?.....A dino-snore!

Maybe you could record your jokes and put them on Tapestry for me?

Sending you all lots of hugs and high fives

Mrs White and all your teachers from Early Years
